This Mutual fund had the highest performance of 25,34% in April 2009 and reached the lowest performance of -38,83% in October 2008.

Market Outlook

JCI declined in March 2026, driven by a combination of geopolitical escalation and the sovereign outlook downgrade by Fitch Ratings. Tensions between the US-Israel and Iran intensified, including attacks on energy infrastructure and spillover risks from the potential closure of the Strait of Hormuz, which pushed oil prices higher. This environment strengthened global risk-off sentiment and raised concerns over inflationary pressures and fiscal space. On the domestic front, Indonesia's sovereign outlook was revised to Negative by Fitch Ratings, following a similar move earlier by Moody's, reflecting heightened policy uncertainty. Fitch also highlighted that Indonesia's sovereign rating could come under pressure if macro vulnerabilities increase, fiscal deficits widen significantly, or foreign exchange reserves decline. Nevertheless, there were positive developments in market governance following concerns raised by MSCI, including the introduction of a minimum 1% shareholder disclosure requirement aimed at improving transparency and the granularity of free float calculations. From a macro perspective, domestic indicators remained relatively stable. Manufacturing PMI stood at 50.1, remaining in expansion territory despite easing from 53.8 in February 2026. Headline inflation declined to 3.48% YoY (from 4.76% in February), below expectations and within Bank Indonesia's target range, while core inflation also eased to 2.52%, with monthly inflation at 0.41%. The trade balance recorded a surplus of USD1.28 billion in February 2026, although narrowing due to stronger import growth of 10.85% YoY compared to export growth of 1.01% YoY. On a cumulative basis, Indonesia still posted a surplus of USD6.59 billion in the first two months of 2026. Bank Indonesia maintained its policy rate at 4.75% to preserve currency stability and keep inflation within the 2.5% ±1% target range. Indonesia's GDP grew by 5.39% YoY in 4Q25, with growth projected at 4.9%-5.7% for 2026. Meanwhile, credit growth moderated to 9.37% YoY in February 2026, with full-year growth expected in the range of 8-12%.
