Market Outlook

February 2026 remained characterized by elevated market volatility, with the JCI moving in a fluctuating range. Investor attention continued to focus on the authorities' response to inflation concerns following MSCI's warning regarding a potential review of Indonesia's Emerging Markets classification. OJK and the Indonesia Stock Exchange (IDX) have taken steps to enhance transparency in share ownership and free float disclosure. Sentiment was also influenced by Moody's revision of Indonesia's outlook to Baa2/Negative from Stable, citing governance and policy uncertainty, although the agency maintained its view of Indonesia's structural resilience supported by natural resources and favorable demographics. Meanwhile, S&P highlighted rising fiscal pressures stemming from higher debt servicing costs, particularly the risk of an elevated interest payment-to-revenue ratio. Toward the end of the month, escalating geopolitical tensions in the Middle East added further volatility, as US-Israel military strikes against Iran heightened concerns over potential disruptions to global energy supply routes, especially the Strait of Hormuz. On the macro front, domestic indicators remained relatively stable. The Manufacturing PMI rose to 53.8 in February 2026, marking seven consecutive months of expansion. Headline inflation increased to 4.76% year-on-year, largely due to a low base effect from last year's electricity tariff discounts, while core inflation stood at 2.63% and monthly inflation rebounded to 0.68% from a 0.15% deflation previously. Indonesia recorded a trade surplus of USD 0.95 billion in January 2026, extending the surplus streak to 69 consecutive months, although the surplus narrowed as imports grew 18.21% year-on-year, outpacing export growth of 3.39%. Bank Indonesia kept its policy rate unchanged at 4.75% for the fifth consecutive meeting, prioritizing rupiah stability amid global volatility while keeping inflation within its 2026-2027 target range. Credit growth accelerated to 9.96% year-on-year in January, driven by investment loans, with full-year growth projected at 8-12%. On the external side, the current account deficit widened to USD 2.54 billion in 4Q25 (0.7% of GDP). However, on a full-year basis, the external position improved significantly, with the 2025 deficit narrowing to USD 1.45 billion (0.1% of GDP). For 2026, Bank Indonesia expects the current account deficit to remain within a manageable range of 0.1%-0.9% of GDP.
